ABOUT IMMERSIVE ARTS

Immersive Arts is an ambitious three-year programme taking place across the UK, using an artist-led approach to working with immersive technologies.

This exciting programme encourages artists of all backgrounds and experience to explore, experiment or expand how they work, or would like to, with immersive technologies.

IMMERSIVE ARTS

Immersive arts means different things to different people. We define it as making art with technology to actively engage with an audience.

Think virtual, extended and augmented realities: ●

engaging multiple senses

- bridging the gaps between physical and digital spaces
- connecting people to each other and the environment
- changing the way we think and create.

You don't have to be tech-savvy (though you can be) to apply. All you need is a curious mind and a creative practice. Then, through a mix of funding, training, research and events, Immersive Arts will support you to figure out what/ how you want to develop and create.

IMMERSIVE ARTS

Essentially, it's all about breaking down barriers, making what can be an exclusive field of practice much more accessible to all. In this way, we want to amplify as many different voices as we can, to help disrupt established ways of being, doing, thinking and creating.

It's a highly collaborative process — we are learning in tandem with you.

Our integrated research will share insights about what works best for the sector and create opportunities for audiences of all backgrounds to engage.

Collaborative leadership

Immersive Arts is run by a collaborative consortium of ten partners who are embedded within the UK's immersive arts and research communities and committed to creating positive change in the sector.

IMMERSIVE ARTS

What counts as immersive art?

IMMERSIVE ARTS

We know the term 'immersive art' has many meanings for different people and across many sectors. For this programme, we mean art that uses technology to actively involve the audience.

We are interested in the use of virtual, augmented and extended reality in the creation of artwork that bridges physical and digital spaces, engages multiple senses, and connects people to each other and/ or to their environment.

See the examples of immersive technologies below. We welcome applications which make the case for using other technologies that enable an audience to be actively involved in the artwork.

- Virtual Reality (VR)

Projects that create digital environments, allowing users to interact within a

IMMERSIVE ARTS

computergenerated world using devices such as VR headsets and motion controllers.

- Augmented Reality (AR)

Initiatives that overlay digital content (usually visual or audio) onto the physical world through devices like smartphones, tablets or AR glasses, enhancing the user's perception of their environment.

- Mixed Reality (MR)

Developments that blend real and virtual worlds to produce new environments where physical and digital objects coexist and interact in real-time, often using headsets with 'pass-through' capabilities like the Meta Quest 3 or Apple Vision Pro.

- Extended Reality (XR)

IMMERSIVE ARTS

A collective term that encompasses VR, AR, and MR, referring to all physical-and-virtual combined environments and human-machine interactions generated by computer technology and wearables.

- Spatial computing

Projects that use spatial mapping and perception technologies to create interactive experiences in the physical space, enabling intuitive interactions between the user and digital content.

- 360-degree video

Utilisation of immersive video technology to create engaging and interactive storytelling experiences, allowing users to look around and explore a scene in every direction.

- Spatial audio

IMMERSIVE ARTS

Projects that use 3D audio effects to place sound in 360 degrees around a listener.

- Binaural sound

Projects that utilise a stereo sound technique that gives audiences a sense of space and distance.

- Haptics and sensory feedback Incorporating tactile feedback and other sensory technologies to enhance the immersive experience, making the digital interactions feel more real and engaging.

- Responsive environments

Installations that use technology such as movement, audio, touch or depth sensing to acknowledge and respond to the presence of the audience in creative and imaginative ways.

IMMERSIVE ARTS

The funding programme aims to create inclusive and accessible opportunities by breaking down the barriers for artists of all backgrounds to engage with immersive tools.

Therefore all artforms are eligible as long as the applicant demonstrates a genuine interest in exploring, experimenting with, or expanding their use of immersive technologies in their creative practice. We are also interested in supporting bilingual or multilingual productions.

What can the funds be used for?

You will need to outline a budget as part of your application. Note the focus and criteria for each of the three funding strands is different.

Ineligible costs

While the Immersive Arts project aims to provide comprehensive support for the development of immersive arts, there are certain activities and costs that are not eligible for funding.

Guidance on fair pay

IMMERSIVE ARTS

Ensuring fair pay for all individuals involved in your project is a key principle of the Immersive Arts programme. We therefore expect any applicant seeking funding to pay themselves and others involved with their project fairly.

Fair pay helps to maintain industry standards, supports sustainability in the arts and fosters a professional and respectful working environment.

Where applicable and appropriate, we expect applicants to state an appropriate industry pay standard in their budgets.

These resources may help you incorporate fair pay into the budget section of your funding application:

- Artists' Union Scotland
- Arts Council of Northern Ireland

See the details below on our selection process for the first funding round of the Immersive Arts programme.

How will my application be evaluated?

Initial eligibility check

- Once submitted, your application will undergo an initial review to ensure it has been completed correctly and meets the eligibility criteria (see page 22).

IMMERSIVE ARTS

- Applications that do not meet these criteria will not progress to the next stage.

Criteria evaluation & scoring

- Eligible applications are reviewed by a panel of experts in the field of immersive arts, consisting of reviewers from a broad range of backgrounds, reflecting the programme's values regarding access, inclusion and diversity.

Portfolio balancing

- A final process of curation and balancing will be made by the Immersive Arts national partners, to ensure that we have a balanced cohort in terms of range of ideas, art form, geographical location and lived experience.
- All applicants will be told in February 2025 whether or not their application was successful.

IMMERSIVE ARTS

Application feedback

As we're expecting a high volume of applications, we will not be able to give individual feedback. But we are committed to sharing learning from the programme - we will write a short report reflecting on the first round of applications and why shortlisted applicants were selected.
